

LAW, WAR AND MORE

WHAT WILL BE COVERED DURING THE COURSE?

Do you really know why you will be in education until you are 18? Who is making all of these decisions for you and who is making laws that affect our daily lives? Democracy or dictatorship? Who decides what our rights are and when can our rights be taken away? If these are the sort of questions that interest you then you should be studying Law, War and More. In this course we will be studying:

- What are human rights, what are my rights?
- Why do inequalities exist?
- How are children affected by conflict?
- How are laws made?
- How should we punish lawbreakers?

WHAT SKILLS WILL BE DEVELOPED OVER THE YEAR?

As we journey into the world of Law, War and More you will start to ask more questions about the world around you. Inquisitiveness will lead to you wanting more evidence so that you can develop strong arguments to express your opinions. You will know where to look for reliable information and be able to tackle problems faced in adult life. The course will also help you to participate in debate and research issues that are going on in the world today.

WHERE WILL THIS COURSE LEAD ME?

This course has universal application to most academic GCSE courses. It is particularly relevant to those who are thinking about studying history or religious studies GCSE, but not essential.
